

Grupo EULEN Earns Prestigious ISAGO Recertification for its Headquarters, Strengthening Its Leadership in Aviation Safety and Ground Operations

Miami, FL -December 9th, Grupo EULEN recently announced that its headquarters has officially obtained the IATA Safety Audit for Ground Operations (ISAGO) recertification, a globally recognized standard that validates excellence in safety, efficiency, and quality in ground handling services.

Developed by the International Air Transport Association (IATA), ISAGO is the aviation industry's most rigorous benchmark for ground operations. This recertification confirms EULEN's full alignment with internationally recognized best practices in areas such as organization management, training, safety oversight, documentation, and standardized procedures.

The audit process, conducted by qualified members of the Charter of Professional Auditors (CoPA), typically spans 6 to 10 months and verifies that ground handling service providers have robust Safety Management Systems (SMS), consistent operating procedures, and strong risk-management practices.

With ISAGO recertification, Grupo EULEN strengthens:

- Eligibility for partnerships with IATA member airlines, many of which prefer or require ISAGO-registered providers.
- Competitiveness in bids or contract renewals with top-tier airlines and airports.
- Training, documentation quality, and accountability at every level of ground handling activity.
- Consistency across ramp, passenger, and cargo operations, aligned with global standards.

“Achieving the ISAGO recertification reflects our unwavering commitment to safety, operational excellence, and continuous improvement,” said María Fernández de Córdoba Martos, CEO US for Grupo EULEN. “This milestone reinforces our credibility as a trusted partner in the aviation industry and positions us for stronger collaboration with leading airlines around the world.”

With this achievement, Grupo EULEN continues expanding its footprint as a reliable, high-performance aviation services provider focused on safety, innovation, and service quality.
